EDUCATION, today, is the responsibility of all Americans. Without education we are unable to participate intelligently and responsible in life, and fail to achieve individual self-realization. Education is increasingly recognized as the servant of all our purposes.

EDUCATION is neither a right nor a privilege; it is a responsibility. Montgomery County Community College seeks to provide full opportunity for the people of Montgomery County in achieving their educational aspirations.

AND SO IT BEGAN IN THE FALL OF '66.

LeRoy R. Brendlinger, B.S., M.S., Ed.D.
President

From its inception in 1963, Dr. Brendlinger has served as the Advisory Committee Chairman for the Montgomery County Community College. Since that time he has devoted a large percentage of his time in the County School Office to Community College affairs. He has participated in many conferences concerning Community Colleges and has acquired a tremendous background in this field through his many contacts with Community College presidents and others concerned with this program. In this respect Dr. Brendlinger has become known for his knowledge and ability in regard to Community College programs. He was largely responsible for the preparation of the document entitled "A Plan for the Establishment of the Community College of Montgomery County, Pennsylvania" dated June, 1964. It was on the basis of this document that original approval was given at the state level for this Community College.

Dr. Brendlinger received a Bachelor of Science Degree from West Chester State College, a Master of Science Degree from the University of Pennsylvania, and a Doctor of Education Degree from Temple University. Dr. Brendlinger is a member of the Community College Residents Council and the Higher Education Commission in Pennsylvania.

In connection with Dr. Brendlinger's work for his Doctor of Education Degree, he prepared his doctoral dissertation on the "Legal Principles Governing the Creation, Reorganization and Elimination of School Districts in Pennsylvania as Established by Legislative Enactments and Judicial Interpretations of these Acts." This dissertation became one of the two basic documents upon which the entire public school program was reorganized in Pennsylvania.

Montgomery County Community College
The Honorable Wilmot E. Fleming

One of the most impressive ceremonies of the 1966-1967 academic year occurred on May 22, 1967. Dr. LeRoy R. Brendlinger was inaugurated as the first president of Montgomery County Community College.

Dr. Brendlinger, in his inaugural address, summed up the role of Community Colleges, as well as all other institutions of learning, when he said, "We have no alternative but to orientate our total efforts toward the intellectual processes of mankind."

"One of the basic objectives for establishment of community colleges," Dr. Brendlinger said, "is to provide further educational opportunities in liberal arts and in occupational skills not only for immediate graduates from our high schools, but also for all citizens interested in attaining additional knowledge and skills for new works which are or will become available."

"No institution can long endure without general philolophic concepts and basic objectives. The Board of Trustees, in establishing policies, adopted the principles that this College should be operated as a teaching collegiate institution, providing both liberal arts and specialized career curricula, leading to associate degrees in Arts, Science, and Applied Science. Montgomery County Community College is therefore collegiate and comprehensive.

"To implement this concept, certain guidelines must be established to assure a balance of courses in each curricular program. Each curriculum should have a core of liberal arts courses equal to approximately thirty percent of the total credit hours necessary for attainment of an Associate Degree.

"Each curriculum should have a core of transfer courses in addition to the traditional liberal arts courses equal to approximately another thirty percent. The remaining forty percent will be in the specialized area selected by the student. Many of these courses in the highly specialized areas are transferable to specialized higher educational institutions.

"We have established in this College this basic collegiate core concept."

"Montgomery County Community College's role in the system of higher education is to provide a quality two-year collegiate education at reasonable cost and within commuting distance of every home in the county so that every eligible citizen will be provided with full opportunity to achieve his educational aspirations."

Dr. Edward C. Scanlon was named to the post of Dean of Academic Affairs. He was an associate professor and department head at Lehigh University. He was also director of the Division of Counselor Education of the Graduate School Education.

A captain in the Air Force Reserve, Dr. Scanlon was educated at the University of Buffalo, Harvard Graduate School and Columbia University Teachers College, including post-doctorate work in community college administration. He has taught at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., and Harvard Graduate School. Dr. Scanlon is listed in "Who's Who in the East" and "Who's Who in American Education."

Three specialists in the fields of science, electronic data processing and technology were featured speakers at the second annual Business-Industrial-Collegiate conference sponsored by Montgomery County Community College, Conshohocken, J. Wesley Leas, general manager of the Valley Forge Division of Control Data Corp., .addressed the general assembly on electronic data processing. Science employment opportunities were discussed by Thomas M. Bushold, Senior Market and Special Studies Analyst for Smith Kline & French Laboratories. James Kendig, manager of non-exempt manpower planning and personnel development at the General Electric Valley Forge Space Technology Center, spoke on the opportunities in the technological fields. Each of the speakers addressed the general assembly, comprised to businessmen, educators, guidance personnel, industrialists and student. After the general session, seminars were organized, at which faculty members formed a panel with each of the featured speakers. Frank Jenkins, county commissioner, Dr. Joseph Feldmeier, chairman of the college Board of Trustees, and Dr. Edward C. Scanlon, Dean of Academic Affairs of the college, extended brief greetings to the conference.

Students In "Every Nook and Corner" As College Presses Hunt For New Home

There are all kinds of college campuses.

Some are compact, sleek and citified, with more concrete than grass. Others feature broad, green expansions that need full-time staffs for landscaping. Still others are in two's and three's with a city or town separating the segments.

But until recently, they all had a common denominator — they came first, before or at least along with the founding of the actual education facility.

Montgomery County Community College is now headquartered at the former Conshohocken High School, while its sponsors, the county commissioners, and its board of trustees look for its permanent site.

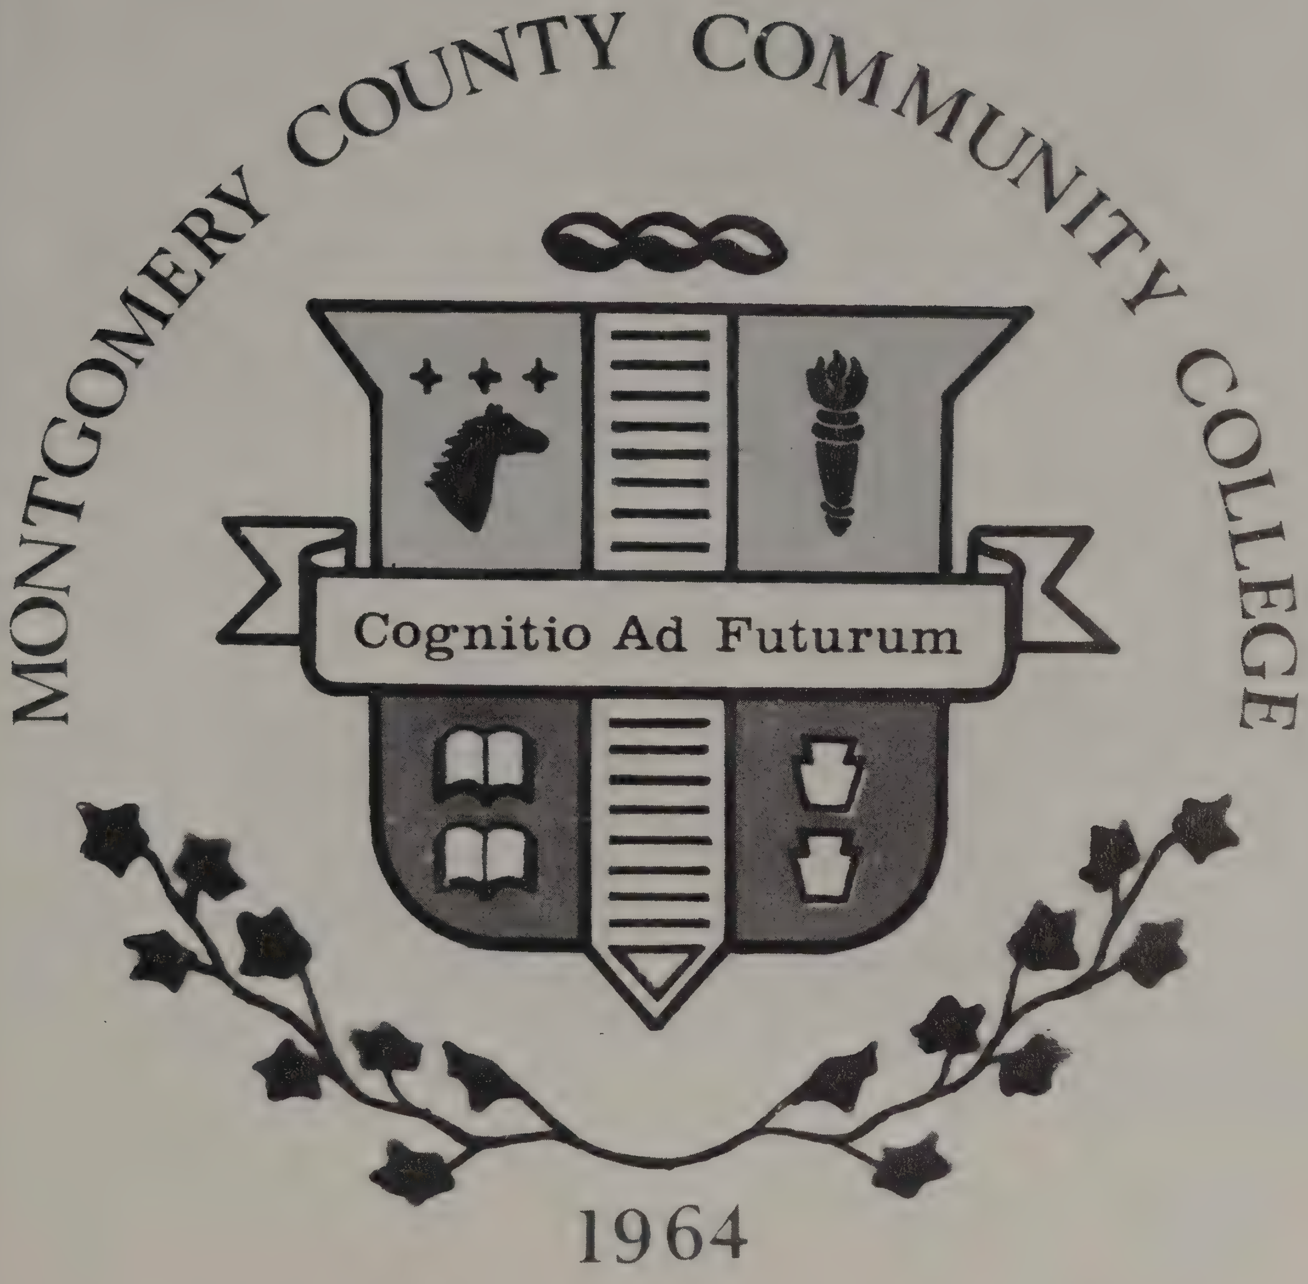
THE FUTURE



MONTGOMERY COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE
Cognitio Ad Futurum
1964

SYMBOLISM OF THE SEAL
MONTGOMERY COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE

The seal of Montgomery County Community College represents the spirit, purpose, and authority of the college through three fields on a shield encircled with the college name and ivy. The circle enclosure symbolizes unity and integration; the ivy symbolizes collegiate atmosphere and tradition.

The shield takes its form from the seal of Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, the county which established the College. The colors are the college and county colors, Quaker grey and garnet.

The upper field in Quaker grey symbolizes spirit. The left section represents the spirit of the students through their selected mascot, the Mustang, and through the three stars to represent their striving for academic, spiritual and physical development. The right section represents the spirit of the faculty through the lighted torch.

The lower field in garnet symbolizes purpose. The left section represents the students' quest for knowledge through formal education with two open books to indicate the two major programs of the college, transfer and career. The right section represents the role of the state and the county in the establishment and support of the College. The upper keystone represents Pennsylvania, "The Keystone State," and the lower keystone, Montgomery County, "The Keystone County of the Keystone State."

The middle field is the vertical white band of authority and responsibility. Undergirded by the triangle representing the three County Commissioners, sixteen bars represent the fifteen members of the Board of Trustees and the President of the College.

The shield is crested by three turns of a rope to symbolize the strength of the College when the efforts of the individual, the county and the state are bound together to provide educational opportunity for the good of all.

The horizontal banner carries the motto of the College, "Cognitio Ad Futurum" Learning for tomorrow.

SEAL DESIGN AND HERALDRY BY ERNEST ALLEN SMITH, December 19, 1967.

THE FUTURE

Projected enrollment at the college is expected to reach 4,000 students by 1975. The Trustees have taken steps to find a permanent site for the buildings and other facilities to house this campus population. The Board's Long Range Planning Committee has studied State standards, rules and regulations, and experiences of other colleges and the special conditions of Montgomery County. The Committee has been aided in this intensive search by the Montgomery County Planning Commission.

Several criteria were established for the permanent location of the college. Primary consideration is given to a central location minimizing travel for the maximum number of students. The road pattern should provide easy access and public transportation should be available. Importantly, the college should be compatible with its neighborhood. Potential sites have been narrowed from 18 to two. One of these was under negotiation by a committee appointed by the County Commissioner as the college's second academic year came to a close.

A Federal grant of $4.3 million dollars was approved early this year for construction of buildings and facilities. This grant will help defray the cost of the new facilities being planned.

Morton L. Fishman, of Morton L. Fishman Associates, a Philadelphia architectural firm, is the architect selected by the Board of Trustees. Mr. Fishman is currently designing several of the structures planned for the proposed campus.
